GENERAL INFORMATION

LOCATION.

The work of administration and instruction in the Graduate Schools is carried on at the Downtown Center, F Street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth Streets, Northwest.

The Campus of about ninety acres on which are situated the main buildings of the College of Liberal Arts extends along the highest ridge in the District of Columbia in the northwest section, overlooking the City of Washington.

The lecture halls of the Graduate Schools are within four blocks of the principal buildings of seven of the ten Departments of the Federal Government, (State, War, Navy, Treasury, Interior, Commerce and Labor); and also, four blocks or less from the White House, Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Civil Service Commission, National Academy of Science, Corcoran Gallery, Red Cross, Daughters of The American Revolution, Pan-American Union and City Auditorium.

WASHINGTON AS AN EDUCATIONAL CENTER.

The educational resources of Washington are almost limitless. There are fifty embassies and legations of foreign governments. The Library of Congress has over 3,000,000 volumes, 170,000 maps, 919,000 pieces of music, 424,783 photographs, prints and engravings. The Public Library has 227,500 volumes and 50,000 mounted pictures. The Bureau of Standards has a scientific staff of 550 specialists. Work done in the Bureau is accepted by the best of universities. Among other facilities for research work in Washington are: The Smithsonian Institution, the New National Museum, the Pan American Union, the United States Public Health Service, the Bureau of Education, the Department of Labor, the Woman's Bureau, the Children's Bureau, the Bureau of American Ethnology, the National Zoological Park, the Bureau of Scientific Literature, the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Corcoran School of Art, the National Gallery of Art, the Freer Gallery of Art, the Carnegie Institution, the offices of fifty-four national patriotic and welfare organizations, the offices of forty-three religious bodies, the offices of twenty-nine scientific societies and headquarters of twelve reform associations. The free resources afforded by Washington for research work could not be provided by hundreds of millions of dollars in endowments.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES.

The University has a general library of about 50,000 volumes. In addition to this there are department libraries in connection with the schools. In some of these there are exceptional opportunities for students as they have constant access to the standard works on the various subjects, and in some courses, a very unusual collection.

DIVISIONS OF THE SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

The scholastic year is divided into two semesters of seventeen weeks each.

FEES.

A matriculation fee of five dollars is payable upon admission to the University.

The tuition fee is seventy-five dollars a semester, payable in advance.

Students registered for less than full number of courses will pay nine dollars and fifty cents per period each semester.

Students having completed all courses required for a degree may take cultural courses for which they will pay one-half regular tuition.

Tuition fees are not returnable except in case of sickness or causes entirely beyond the control of the student. No portion of the returnable fees shall be returned for voluntary withdrawal after thirty days from date of registration of the student. In no case will more than one-half of the fees be refunded.

A diploma fee of ten dollars is payable before graduation.

Special terms are granted to clergymen, candidates for the ministry, and missionaries.

PERIODS.

Each lecture period is one hour and a quarter.

CREDITS.

To obtain credit for a full term's work a candidate must take at least ten hours per week, or eight periods of class room work (selected from the list of courses offered).

No student will be permitted to take more courses than the number in which he can maintain a high standard of scholarship.

Students will be marked H, P or F in each course. H represents honor standing, P is the pass mark and F means failure. Every candidate for a degree must receive an H mark in courses representing at least two-thirds of the number of hours required for a degree. Students are permitted to elect courses to a maximum of ten hours per week of class room work. After their first semester, students will not be permitted to take in any semester courses aggregating in class room work more than one and a half times the number of the hours of the courses in which they secured an H mark the previous semester; except that every student will be permitted to take five hours per week of class room work. Students who secure honor grades, H in every course taken in any semester, will be permitted to take the maximum hours per week the following semester.

ADMISSION AS GRADUATE STUDENTS.

Admission to the school is open to two classes of students:

1. Men and women who are graduates of recognized colleges and who wish to pursue graduate work leading to an advanced degree.

No student is considered a candidate for a degree until he has been in residence a sufficient time to enable his instructors to judge of his ability to carry on graduate work.

2. Persons not graduates of recognized colleges who wish to pursue graduate work not leading to a degree.

Students who are not candidates for a higher degree are not required to designate major or minor subjects but may elect their work with a view to a special purpose for which they are in attendance at the University. The courses announced for graduates are open for election by students not candidates for a degree upon the same general conditions imposed upon candidates for a degree.

AUDITORS.

With consent of instructors concerned, any mature person not registered as a student in the University, may be enrolled at the office as an auditor in not more than two courses on payment of the regular tuition fee for such courses. Auditors are not permitted to take the examination or obtain credit for courses attended.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE MASTER'S DEGREE.

THESIS.

Treatment of topic in field of specialization showing mastery of literature on said topic, plus original constructive contribution to said literature (work embodied therein should correspond, roughly, to about one-third of intellectual output of residence period). Thesis topic must be approved by the Dean of the School, and the head of the department in which the candidate's major work is done; and the preparation of the thesis must be under the personal and close supervision of the head of the department in which the major work is done. The candidate's thesis must be passed upon, revised if necessary, and finally approved by the Dean of the school and the head of the department.

EXAMINATION.

The candidate shall be required to take a public oral examination covering the entire field of his specialization. This examination shall be conducted by the head of the department in which the candidate has taken his major work.

A candidate for the Master's degree may substitute a half year's work, i. e., five hours a week for an academic year for the writing and defense of a thesis. Such work must be done under the direction of the professor in charge of the student's major subject.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY.

A candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy must hold the bachelor's degree from an accredited college; must devote at least three years of study, one of which must be in residence at the American University, and do research in a special branch of learning; and present a dissertation which reveals ability to do independent research and which makes a distinct contribution to knowledge. The length of time spent is wholly secondary, but in judging the candidate's qualifications the faculty will recognize graduate work completed at other institutions.

THESIS.

The Thesis must show evidence of original research representing the major intellectual output of at least one year; and said research, together with treatment and report of same, must contribute an original and valuable contribution to knowledge. The thesis topic must be approved by the Dean of the School and the head of the department in which the candidate's major work is done; and the thesis when completed under the personal supervision of the professor in charge must be reviewed and finally approved by a committee appointed by the Dean of the school and recommended by the Dean to the Academic Council for acceptance in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree in issue.

EXAMINATION.

Each candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy must pass a special oral examination covering the entire field of his "major" and related subjects; such oral examination to be conducted by the head of the department in which the candidate's major work has been done.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS.

Each candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy must satisfy the Dean of the school and the head of the department in which the major part of his work is to be done that he is competent to read the literature in all his field of specialization in French or German and, at least, one other modern language than English. This language requirement must be fulfilled before admission to candidacy for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS FOR ALL DEGREES.

The requirements for a degree cannot be fulfilled by mere accumulation of credits. The candidate must demonstrate that he has a comprehensive knowledge of his major subject and that he is capable of carrying on a satisfactory investigation in the field of that subject. If the candidate passes oral examinations satisfactorily, the Dean of the School and head of the department in which the candidate's major work is done may recommend him to appear in person before the Academic Council publicly to defend his thesis (seven summaries of which must be in the hands of the Academic Council at least one week before candidate appears in person). If the candidate shall succeed in publicly defending his thesis, including satisfactory answers to questions in his major field of research, before the Academic Council said Council may recommend him forthwith for the degree in issue.

The subject of the thesis must be determined with the Dean and head of the department not later than November 1st preceding graduation. Thesis must be turned in to the Dean by March 31st.

Thesis must be $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$ inch size paper and five legible typewritten copies, two of which must be bound in buckram at the student's expense. This binding may be done after final approval by the Academic Council.

Credits given for graduate work in the schools of the Bureau of Standards and the Department of Agriculture are accepted by the American University.

REQUIREMENTS FOR MASTER OF SCIENCE AND DOCTOR OF SCIENCE.

The requirements for the degree of Master of Science and Doctor of Science are in general the same respectively as those required for a Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy.

REGISTRATION.

Students must matriculate and register in the school in which they are to do their major work.

FELLOWSHIPS.

The Academic Council may grant annually, subject to the approval of the Board of Trustees, fellowships as follows:

SWIFT FOUNDATION.

The late Mrs. Gustavus Franklin Swift founded this fellowship to help graduates of the Garrett Biblical Institute to become more proficient as Christian leaders. The endowment produces an annual income of $500 to $600. The applicant must be recommended by the Garrett Biblical Institute.

MASSEY FOUNDATION.

Under the will of the late Hart A. Massey $50,000 was left to the American University, the income of which is now used for fellowships for students from Canada. In case of deficiency of applicants, others may be considered. The stipend is $1,000.

Applicants for fellowships should apply to the office of the University as soon as possible for application blanks, fill them out and return them to the University not later than March 31st. An earlier date, however, is to be preferred. Candidates will have preference, other things being equal, who submit a definite plan and outline of contemplated research. A photograph of the applicant is requested.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

By authority of the American University, the Academic Council is given permission to grant five scholarships to student graduates of colleges or universities in the United States and five scholarships to students recommended by the representatives of five foreign countries.

DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY.

Professor Collier and Professor John.

The courses in philosophy are so arranged that the classroom work, which covers the principal problems in philosophy, may be covered in three years. The research should be done simultaneously, but the time element is not so important in this phase of the work as is the ability of the student to demonstrate that he is able to carry on independent investigation.

THEORY OF THOUGHT.

The meaning and scope of Philosophy, the general nature and conditions of thought, perception, the significance of the categories, the notion, the judgment, inference, proof, explanation, structural fallacies, deduction and induction.

There will be classroom discussions and criticisms of the aforementioned problems. Research work will be assigned to students. Individual work will be arranged for each student, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE.

Theoretical and practical possibility of Philosophical Scepticism, Realism and Idealism, Apriorism and Empiricism, the distinction between knowledge and belief.

The classroom work will consist of discussions and criticisms of the foregoing problems. Research work will be assigned to students. Individual work will be arranged for each student, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

METAPHYSICS.

The consideration of the aim and field of metaphysics will be followed with the investigation of the problems of (1) Ontology—Appearance and Reality, Being, the Nature of Things, Change and Identity, Causality, and the Nature of the World-Ground; (2) Cosmology—Space, Time, Motion, Matter, Force, and the Cosmic Mechanism; (3) Psychology—the Soul, the Relation of Soul and Body, Mental Mechanism, Freedom and Necessity.

The classroom work will consist of discussions and criticisms of the problems as stated. Research work will be assigned for each student, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

THEISM.

Religion, its origin and rational ground, the unity, intelligence, and personality of the World-Ground; the metaphysical attributes of the World-Ground; the relation of God to the world; the ethical nature of the World-Ground; Theism and Practical Life.

In the classroom there will be discussions and criticisms of these problems as stated above, and independent research work will be required of each student. Individual work will be assigned, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

ETHICS.

The course will cover the fundamental ethical ideas, Good, Duty, and Virtue; the principal schools of Ethics, Egoism, Hedonism, Utilitarianism, Intuitionism, and Evolutionary Ethics, the Ethics of the Individual, of the Family, and of Society.

The classroom work will consist of discussion and criticisms of these problems as outlined by the instructor. Independent research work will be required of students. Individual work will be assigned, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

PHILOSOPHY OF LAW.

The reason, purpose and authority of law. Relation of past and present laws to morals, psychology, economic and social evolution.

HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHY

The entire third year will be given to the history of Philosophy. Classroom work will consist of the discussion and criticism of the main problems of each philosophical system. Such works on the History of Philosophy as those by Wondelband, Burnet, Benn, Erdmann and Ueberweg, will be followed with readings from the original sources. Independent research work will be required of students, and individual work will be assigned, papers being presented to the instructor monthly.

A seminar in the History of Modern Philosophy from Kant to the present—1925-26.

ANCIENT AND MEDIAEVAL, FROM 600 B. C. TO 1600 A. D.

The course is designed to assist the student in obtaining a well organized background of philosophic thought with special reference to the problems of education and of civilization in general. Regular reports and discussions based upon assigned readings from translations of the original philosophic treatises will be required throughout the year.

MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY, FROM 1600 A. D. TO THE PRESENT TIME.

This course is a continuation of the one preceding.

DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY.

Professor Collier and Professor Bentley.

Preliminary courses are listed in the catalog of the College of Liberal Arts (see page 29). These courses are open to graduate students who desire to review introductory studies.

GENERAL PSYCHOLOGY (Advanced Course)

(a) A consideration of the structural and functional aspects of psychology and a discussion of the elementary processes, sensation, feeling, the simple image and attention with special reference to recent theories and psychological literature.

(b) Lectures and demonstrations dealing with the complex processes of perception, association, memory, imagination, action, thought and emotion.

(a) and (b) constitute a systematic survey of the field of experimental human psychology. They presuppose a familiarity with the general content of psychology in its fundamental nature and aim to fit the student for the application of psychology to the applied sciences. The treatment will be historical and critical.

EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY.

This course will be approached from the following points of view:

(a) Biological and Physiological, dealing with the nervous system in terms of stimulation and function; the development of man's original nature and capacities.

(b) Psychological, dealing with the inheritance of mental traits and human variations; the measurement of intelligence; rate and progress in learning; the higher thought processes and the psychology of the elementary and high school subjects.

(c) Sociological, dealing with the educational value of social organization, the conditions of efficient mental activity and hygiene in the light of social adjustment.

SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY.

The study of the mental characters of man as they are affected by his social life. Investigation of such problems as the nature of the social unit, the group mind in its different aspects, the crowd, the mob, the deliberate assembly. Instinct, imitation, intelligence, and suggestion in social life.

RACIAL PSYCHOLOGY.

Individual and group psychology; the distinction and interrelation between them. The common characteristics of the human race. Organic and social heredity. Physical basis of racial mentality. Question of races differing in general ability. Psychology of particular racial and national groups. Modifications in national psychology.

HISTORY OF PSYCHOLOGY.

Course traces origin of psychology in ancient philosophy; its development in the theoretical French, German, and English schools; and the rise and development of experimental psychology in Germany, France, and America.

SPECIAL THEORETICAL RESEARCH.

Individual students who have done a considerable amount of advanced work in Metaphysics, Ethics, Epistemology, Religion, or Hindu philosophies, may make individual plans with the instructors for special theoretical research and thesis upon the relation of the particular branch of philosophy selected to psychology.

THE PHYSICAL SCIENCES.

The University offers graduate work leading to the master's and doctor's degree in the physical sciences to such research men as have laboratory facilities in connection with their government investigational work.

The University in its present stage of development is not yet fully equipped with laboratory buildings and facilities, and its only available laboratories are still used by some of the research divisions of the government in consequence of war-time occupations of the University buildings and campus. Nevertheless, Washington offers unusual opportunities for students of the physical sciences, for there is no other place in the world where so many specialists in scientific investigations are gathered, with the unusual and complete equipment in scientific instruments, apparatus, and libraries supplied by a government liberal in its appropriations for scientific investigations in the furtherance of the welfare of the people.

Specialists of national and international reputation on any branch or subject in the physical sciences can be found in Washington, men of broad experience in research and teaching and the University endeavors to secure for the student in any special branch of the physical sciences the assistance and helpful guidance of these men and the facilities which the government libraries and laboratories can offer. Through its system of counseling professors the University has been able to arrange for a number of student courses in advanced research in the physical sciences, especially in various branches of chemistry including physical chemistry and biochemistry, plant physiology and geology as well as such work as agricultural economics and economic botany.

The work is arranged on the personal conference and supervision plan by which the student receives the maximum amount of individual attention and has proven very satisfactory in the conductance of advanced work. It follows that under such a plan the student himself must be earnest and industrious and well prepared and have sufficient maturity and experience to profit from the course pursued. As each case requires distinct and personal attention the candidate for a course in any of the physical sciences is requested to communicate with the Dean, stating his training, experience and aims.

INTRODUCTION TO SCIENCE.

This course is intended to acquaint the student with the basal principles of general science—its meaning and scope, its aim and method. Attention is given to the scientific mood and its relation to the emotional and the practical moods, and the relation of science to philosophy, to art, to religion, and to practical life.

DEPARTMENT OF AMERICAN HISTORY.

Professor James and Professor Tansill.

HISTORY OF POLITICAL PARTIES IN THE UNITED STATES, 1844-1923.

Election of 1844; Whig Party and the Mexican War; Political Personalities; the Whig Party in the South; Know Nothing and Free Soil Parties; Secession Movements in the South, 1850-1860; Rise of the Republican Party; Election of 1860; Political Factions in the Confederacy; Dissensions in Republican Party, 1861-1865; Presidential versus Congressional Reconstruction; Liberal Republican Party; Why the Solid South?; Contested Election of 1876; Return of the Democratic Party to Power; the Cleveland Era; Imperialism; Third Party Movements Since the Civil War; Republican Dominance; Progressive Insurgency; the Republican Schism; Democratic Leadership; Election of 1920.

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES, 1850-1877.

Compromise of 1850; the Abolitionists; Kansas-Nebraska Act; Ostend Manifesto; growth of sectionalism; the Cotton Kingdom; the Appeal to Arms; the Civil War; collapse of the Confederacy; economic readjustment; rise of manufactures; tariff problems; transportation; reconstruction, political and economic.

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES, SEMINAR.

This course is designed to afford training in methods of historical investigation and use of sources. Subject for 1924-25; History of Political Parties in the United States.

HISTORY OF EDUCATION.

Professor Bentley and Professor John

HISTORY OF EDUCATION; ANCIENT AND MEDIAEVAL PERIODS.

The study of the development of educational principles and practices from the early Greek period until the close of the 15th century. The relations between secondary and higher education will be discussed. Special attention will be given to the "Greek Universities," and the later development of the "stadium generale" as it appeared in the universities of Bologna, Paris, Oxford, Cambridge, and those of Scotland and Germany.

Regular presentation and discussion of papers will be required.

HISTORY OF EDUCATION; MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY PERIODS.

This course is the continuation of the one outlined above. The development of the German gymnasium, the English Public School, and other types of secondary schools with special reference to their relations to the universities.

During the latter half of the year attention will be given to the aims and standards of colleges and preparatory schools in the United States.

THE PRINCIPLES OF EDUCATION.

This course will consist of a series of studies and investigations regarding the biological bases of education in the light of the most recent authorities. This course will serve as an introduction to the following courses which will consider the psychological and sociological bases of education. Seminar.

ENGLISH AND COMPARATIVE LITERATURE.

Professor Kaufman, Professor Woods and Professor Hutchins.

2. MIDDLE ENGLISH.

A reading of representative selections from the poetry and prose of the Middle English Period. Study of the forms of the language.

Anglo-Saxon a prerequisite for this course.

8. MILTON AND HIS TIME.

A detailed study of all of Milton's poetry with special attention to the epics and Samson Agonistes, and of representative selections from his prose. The influences which affected his thought and expression. His own influence on English thought and English poetry.

Survey of representative literature during his lifetime: Cavalier and religious poetry, the developments of English prose, the revival of the drama, and the rise of important modern ideas. Throughout the course a special effort will be made to understand the political and religious struggles, the earlier phases of which resulted in the settlement of New England.

10. THE ROMANTIC MOVEMENT.

Chronological, interpretative survey of the revival and triumph of the romantic temper in English literature, 1759-1832, with some consideration of the corresponding movements on the Continent.

Special emphasis is laid upon the rise of tendencies which contribute to romanticism: the recovery of the past, the renewed interest in nature, primitivism, sentimentalism, and the various movements of revolt in political and social thought. These influences are studied with some thoroughness in Cowper, Burns, and Blake, and then in much greater detail in Wordsworth, Coleridge, Shelley, and Byron, with particular reference to their early work. While not ignoring new and rich forms of expression, the course is primarily concerned with the manifestations of those ideas which determine the thinking of the 19th century and our own generation.

12. LITERARY CRITICISM.

The principles of literary criticism worked out inductively from notable works in fiction and poetry, beginning with examples of the present time. Application of various types of criticism to these examples. Rapid historical survey of the principal tendencies with reading of the outstanding works from Aristotle's Poetics to the present.

This course constitutes an introduction to the following course in Aims and Methods in the Study of Literature.

13. AIMS AND METHODS IN THE STUDY OF LITERATURE.

A comprehensive introduction to the general problems in the various types of literary expression with some consideration of the historical development of those types. The problems of source and influences. The creative process. Methods of approaching bibliographical resources. Illustrations will be drawn from a wide range of literature, ancient and modern.

This is not a course in methods of teaching literature, but the systematic analysis of various approaches to literary phenomena should prove useful to the teacher.

Those who have taken the course in the History and Principles of Literary Criticism in previous years are advised to pursue course 12 as special preparation for course 13.

25. DRAMATICS: THE HISTORY AND THEORY OF STAGE PRODUCTION.

A practical study of the mechanics of the stage from the earliest times to the present day, with special emphasis on the Greek, the Elizabethan, the 17th century French, and the contemporary methods of production. The emphasis throughout will be laid upon the physical conditions which determine the nature of the drama, and not upon its literary aspects. Detailed study will be made of all the physical conditions, such as scenery, properties, lighting, costuming, and also of the management of dramatic performance. The laboratory method will be followed through the use of diagrams, models, and stereopticon slides.

20. ENGLISH SEMINAR.

This course is designed to meet several needs. It provides an opportunity for students who are not enrolled in other courses in the department, but who are pursuing investigations, to report progress from time to time and so to keep other members in touch with the problems involved. It will offer opportunity for summarizing noteworthy current contributions in scholarship and criticism, both in the periodicals and in recent volumes. It will offer opportunity for the discussion of any questions in the field of literature, including consideration of significant contemporary literature, which members may wish to present. The program at each session will recognize, in so far as practicable, all these interests. The subject of the third part of the program for 1925-26 will be "The Literary Scene through our Critics' Eyes." From time to time instructors and advanced students from other institutions will be invited to take part.

FINE ARTS.

Professor Hutchins.

1. THE HISTORY AND APPRECIATION OF THE FINE ARTS.

A comprehensive survey of the nature of art expression in Europe based upon a chronological study of the developments in the fine arts from the time of Constantine to the end of the 16th century. While the more prominent forms, architecture, sculpture, and painting, will receive chief emphasis, other modes of art expression will not be ignored. Throughout the course the achievements in the visual arts will be interpreted as vital manifestations of the thought of the various periods and will be definitely related to the history of those periods.

A considerable number of the lectures will be illustrated by stereopticon slides.

2. DRAMATIC ART: THE HISTORY AND THEORY OF STAGE PRODUCTION.

A practical study of the mechanics of the stage from the earliest times to the present day, with special emphasis on the Greek, the Elizabethan, the 17th century French, and the contemporary methods of production. The emphasis throughout will be laid upon the physical conditions which determine the nature of the drama, and not upon its literary aspects. Detailed study will be made of all the physical conditions, such as scenery, properties, lighting, and costuming, and also of the management of dramatic performances. The laboratory method will be followed through the use of diagrams, models, and stereopticon slides.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

Professor Bentley, Professor Collier, Professor Kaufman,
Professor John, Professor Duncan,
Professor Dawson.

Religious Education at the American University exists to meet the needs of a rapidly developing demand in Protestantism for trained religious leadership in the educational task of the church. A system of religious education, both evangelistic and educational in emphasis, is Protestantism's present contribution to democratic society. Its supreme task is the Christianizing of our personal and social ideals.

The entire resources of the American University are pledged to meet this increasing need. The courses listed in this catalog are especially designed to prepare young men and women for (1) professional leadership in colleges and universities as teachers, organizers and social workers; (2) Directors in Religious Education and Social Service in churches and communities; (3) specialists in the several phases of church and young peoples' activities; (4) superintendents, principals and teachers in the increasing number of Week-Day Schools of religious education.

ADMISSION.

Admission is open to three classes of students:

1. Men and women who are graduates of an approved college or university.

2. Men and women who have an equivalent of a baccalaureate degree or, at least, three years college work, are eligible to the three-year course in Religious Education leading to the degree of Master of Religious Education.

No student is considered a candidate for a degree until he has been in residence a sufficient time to enable his instructors to judge of his ability to do graduate work.

3. Persons, not graduates of recognized colleges, who wish to pursue graduate work not leading to a degree.

Students who are not candidates for a higher degree are not required to designate major or minor subjects but may elect their work with a view to a special purpose for which they are in attendance at the University. The courses announced for graduates are open for election by students not candidates for a degree upon the same general condition imposed upon candidates for a degree.

REQUIREMENTS FOR A MASTER OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

The Degree of Master of Religious Education will be granted upon the successful completion of three years of designated work at least two years of which, must be in addition to the requirements for a Baccalaureate Degree.

Advanced standing may be granted to students having degrees from recognized colleges and universities, for courses equivalent in content and method to the courses required for the Master of Religious Education Degree.

No degree will be granted for less than one year of residence study pursued under the direction of the Faculty of Religious Education.

The degree of M. R. E. is a professional degree and in addition to class-room and laboratory requirements will call for an approved clinical study of religious education satisfactory to the Faculty, which shall be done in some practical field of religious educational activity.

COURSES OF STUDY.

ENGLISH BIBLE, LITERATURE AND EXEGESIS.

Professor Kaufman and Professor Duncan.

OLD TESTAMENT INTRODUCTION.

The course in the Old Testament will include a critical study of each book to get the exact idea of the writer from the standpoint of his own time. Questions of authorship, time, place and purpose of writing will be considered. The main religious ideas, historic and archaeological problems will be fully discussed.

NEW TESTAMENT INTRODUCTION.

A critical study of the four Gospels, the dates and conditions under which they were written, the influence contemporary life had upon the writers and to what extent the Synoptic Gospels and the Fourth Gospel record the words of Christ. The problems of authorship and purpose of the Pauline and other epistles and of the book of Revelation.

PERSON AND TEACHING OF CHRIST.

A critical examination of the material relating to the person of Christ as found in the Synoptic Gospels and the Fourth Gospel, considering what the common people, the Jewish leaders, the Disciples thought of Him, and finally what he thought of himself as evidenced by a study of his self-consciousness. An historical and critical examination of the principles of Christ as found in the Synoptic and Fourth Gospel.

LITERATURE OF THE BIBLE.

A general study of the literary types of the Old Testament and the Apocrypha: narrative, drama, lyric poetry, and the various kinds of wisdom literature. Comparative method in relating the several types to similar examples in other literatures. The approach is non-theological and non-doctrinal.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND PSYCHOLOGY.

Professor Bentley and Professor Collier.

HISTORY OF MORAL AND RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

A rapid survey of the history of moral and religious education in the early Christian Church, with special consideration of the Jewish, Grecian, and Roman backgrounds. A discussion of the Monastic period and religious life. The pedagogical aspects of the Renaissance and Humanism. The outstanding contribution of the reformers; Luther, Melancthon, Calvin, etc. Early Protestant schools in Germany, Switzerland, and England. The Roman Catholic systems. Origin and development of the International Sunday School Association. Place and purpose of the Religious Education Association and other religious agencies and institutions.

THE PSYCHOLOGY AND RELIGION OF CHILDHOOD AND ADOLESCENCE.

A summary of the history of the Paidology movement with an analysis of the periods of human development from infancy to adolescence in terms of physical growth, mental unfolding, social adaptation and religious expansion. The field will be approached from the genetic, psychoanalytic and experimental methods where each yields its contributions to religious education.

THE PRINCIPLES OF MORAL AND RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

An examination of the principles underlying moral and religious education. (a) A study of human behavior with the capacities, tendencies, reflexes and instincts of man in the development of consciousness. (b) A classification of elemental factors, sensations and simple image leading to a discussion of attention, affection and perception in the learning process. (c) The facts and laws of individual differences and their relation to heredity and environment. (d) The pedagogy of fear, anger; the emotions and sentiments. Motivation and interest in the pupils' approach to the church school subjects and life's purposes as moral and religious citizens. (e) Religious educational ideals and the operation of the psychophysical tendencies of the human mind in the life of society according to the principles of social psychology. (f) A survey of unconscious mental life in the individual and those about him from the recent discoveries in psychoanalysis.

THE METHODS OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

This course seeks to apply religious education to the local church and will discuss the following: (a) The art of illustration and instruction in the classroom; learning by dramatization, pageants and the stereopticon. The principles and methods of storytelling, handwork, and the chief factors in building a Teacher Training Class within the local church. (b) The genetic aspects and function of worship, educational evangelism. (c) The organization and administration of the Local Church School.

THE PROGRAMS OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

(a) The building of a Community School of Religious Education for Christian leadership. (b) The organization and operation of Daily Vacation Bible Schools. (c) The principles and methods of weekday religious instruction and the correlation of weekday and Sunday systems. For each division references will be made to the accepted texts and general literature of the entire field cited.

APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY FOR RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

The application of experimental psychological methods to religious education dealing with (a) the materials and principles of curriculum building; (b) consideration of the content and results of the education tests and measurement movement and their application to, and meaning for, both the group and individual, leading to an examination of tests in religious education.

SYSTEMATIC PSYCHOLOGY.

A general course presenting the facts of mental life in their larger outline. The course will consist of lectures and demonstrations dealing with the physiological background, sense perception, images and feelings, etc., presenting the more important facts that have come to our knowledge by experimental investigation.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF RELIGION.

A course for advanced students or those preparing for the Master's degree in Theology, consisting of an analysis of religious phenomena; the formation and function of religious beliefs; the emotions and sentiments; the unconscious states, etc.

SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY.

The study of the mental characters of man as they are affected by his social life. Investigations of such problems as the nature of the social unit, the group mind in its different aspects, the crowd, the mob, the deliberate assembly. Instinct, imitation, intelligence, and suggestion in social life.

RACIAL PSYCHOLOGY.

Individual and group psychology; the distinction and interrelation between them. The common characteristics of the human race. Organic and social heredity. Physical basis of racial mentality. Question of races differing in general ability. Psychology of particular racial and national groups. Modifications in national psychology.

HISTORY OF PSYCHOLOGY.

Course traces origin of psychology in ancient philosophy; its development in theoretical French, German, and English schools; and the rise and development of experimental psychology in Germany, France, and America.

SPECIAL THEORETICAL RESEARCH.

Individual students who have done a considerable amount of advanced work in Metaphysics, Ethics, Epistemology, Religion, or Hindu philosophies, may take individual plans with the instructors for special theoretical research and thesis upon the relation of the particular branch of philosophy selected to psychology.

HISTORY OF EDUCATION; ANCIENT AND MEDIAEVAL PERIODS.

The study of the development of educational principles and practices from the early Greek period until the close of the 15th century. The relations between secondary and higher education will be discussed. Special attention will be given to the "Greek Universities," and the later development of the "stadium generale" as it appeared in the universities of Bologna, Paris, Oxford, Cambridge, and those of Scotland and Germany.

Regular presentation and discussion of papers will be required.

HISTORY OF EDUCATION; MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY PERIODS.

This course is the continuation of the one outlined above. The development of the German gymnasium, the English Public School, and other types of secondary schools with special reference to their relations to the universities.

During the latter half of the year attention will be given to the aims and standards of colleges and preparatory schools in the United States.

PHILOSOPHY AND ETHICS.

The courses in philosophy are so arranged that the classroom work, which covers the principal problems in philosophy, may be covered in three years. The research should be done simultaneously, but the time element is not so important in this phase of the work as is the ability of the student to demonstrate that he is able to carry on independent investigation.

THEORY OF THOUGHT.

The meaning and scope of Philosophy, the general nature and conditions of thought, perception, the significance of the categories, the notion, the judgment, inference, proof, explanation, structural fallacies, deduction and induction.

There will be classroom discussions and criticisms of the aforementioned problems. Research work will be assigned to students. Individual work will be arranged for each student, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE.

Theoretical and practical possibility of Philosophical Scepticism, Realism and Idealism, Apriorism and Empiricism, the distinction between knowledge and belief.

The classroom work will consist of discussions and criticisms of the foregoing problems. Research work will be assigned to students. Individual work will be arranged for each student, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

METAPHYSICS.

The consideration of the aim and field of metaphysics will be followed with the investigation of the problems of (1) Ontology—Appearance and Reality, Being, the Nature of Things, Change and Identity, Causality, and the Nature of the World-Ground; (2) Cosmology—Space, Time, Motion, Matter, Force, and the Cosmic Mechanism; (3) Psychology—the Soul, the Relation of Soul and Body, Mental Mechanism, Freedom and Necessity.

THEISM.

Religion, its origin and rational ground, the unity, intelligence, and personality of the World-Ground; the metaphysical attributes of the World-Ground; the relation of God to the world; the ethical nature of the World-Ground; Theism and Practical Life.

In the classroom there will be discussions and criticisms of these problems as stated above, and independent research work will be required of each student. Individual work will be assigned, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

ETHICS.

The course will cover the fundamental ethical ideas, Good, Duty, and Virtue; the principal schools of Ethics, Egoism, Hedonism, Utilitarianism, Intuitionism, and Evolutionary Ethics, the Ethics of the Individual, of the Family, and of Society.

The classroom work will consist of discussion and criticisms of these problems as outlined by the instructor. Independent research work will be required of students. Individual work will be assigned, and monthly papers will be presented to the instructor.

PHILOSOPHY OF LAW.

The reason, purpose and authority of law. Relation of past and present laws to morals, psychology, economic and social evolution.

HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHY.

The entire third year will be given to the history of Philosophy. Classroom work will consist of the discussion and criticism of the main problems of each philosophical system. Such works as Windelband's History of Philosophy will be followed with readings from the original sources. Independent research work will be required of students, and individual work will be assigned, papers being presented to the instructor monthly.

ANCIENT AND MEDIAEVAL, FROM 600 B. C. TO 1600 A. D.

The course is designed to assist the student in obtaining a well organized background of philosophic thought with special reference to the problems of education and of civilization in general. Regular reports and discussions based upon assigned readings from translations of the original philosophic treatises will be required throughout the year.

MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY, FROM 1600 A. D. TO THE PRESENT TIME.

This course is a continuation of the one preceding.

JURISPRUDENCE

ADMISSION.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

Admission to the school is open to two classes of students.

1. Men and women who have received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from an accredited law school.

No student is considered a candidate for a degree until he has been in residence a sufficient time to enable his instructors to judge of his ability to do graduate work.

2. Persons not graduates of recognized colleges who wish to pursue graduate work not leading to a degree.

Students who are not candidates for a higher degree are not required to designate major or minor subjects but may elect their work with a view to a special purpose for which they are in attendance at the University. The courses announced for graduates are open for election by students not candidates for a degree upon the same general condition imposed upon candidates for a degree.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.

In the section of Jurisprudence students who have completed an undergraduate law course are given an opportunity to pursue graduate professional studies in their special field. The degrees here given are those of Master of Laws and Doctor of Civil Law.

MASTER OF LAWS.

Candidates for the degree of Master of Laws must hold the baccalaureate degree from an accredited law school; must pursue a course of study extending over a period of one or more years and must submit a thesis upon a subject approved by the Dean.

DOCTOR OF CIVIL LAW.

To be admitted as a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Civil Law, the applicant must have received both the degree of Bachelor of Arts or its equivalent, and the degree of Master of Laws from an accredited law school, or both the degree of Master of Arts and Bachelor of Law. The candidate must devote at least two years to study, one of which must be in residence at the American University, and present a dissertation which reveals ability to do independent research and which makes a distinct contribution to knowledge.

To obtain credit for a full semester's work a candidate must take at least ten hours per week of classroom work (selected from the list of courses offered in this Department), or do an equivalent amount of individual research work, and in addition must attend the general lecture courses on legal topics given in this school. A student taking less than this amount of work in a semester will be given a proportionate credit toward his degree.

GOVERNMENT

GOVERNMENT.

The Department of Government of the American University was organized in response to the demand for a school, located in the Nation's Capital, offering a thorough and comprehensive course of study in the principles, theories, and problems of government.

The courses in Government are professional-graduate courses. The work is planned to meet the requirements of several distinct types of persons. (1) Lawyers, who recognize the need of a thorough knowledge of government and political science as essential to the highest success in the practice of their chosen profession. (2) Persons who are now engaged, or expect to enter, some form of public service or political activity, who desire to fit themselves for more effective public leadership. (3) Men and women who expect to enter the field of collegiate teaching in the field of government and political science.

Students in Washington enjoy unequalled advantages in the way of library facilities and personal contact with, and frequently study under, men who are specialists in their respective fields and who are now actively engaged in solving the numerous problems of our nation. ×

ADMISSION.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

Admission is open to three classes of students.

1. Men and women who are graduates of an approved college or university or who have received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from an approved law school.

No student is considered a candidate for a degree until he has been in residence a sufficient time to enable his instructors to judge of his ability to do graduate work.

3. Persons not graduates of recognized colleges who wish to pursue graduate work not leading to a degree.

Students who are not candidates for a higher degree are not required to designate major or minor subjects but may elect their work with a view to a special purpose for which they are in attendance at the University. The courses announced for graduates are open for election by students not candidates for a degree upon the same general condition imposed upon candidates for a degree.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.

Students whose major work is in the field of Government may become candidates for the degrees of Master of Political Science, Master of Laws, Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy under the following conditions:

MASTER OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

The degree of Master of Political Science will be granted upon the successful completion of three years' work in Government, at least two years of which must be in addition to the requirements for a baccalaureate degree. A thesis upon a subject approved by the Dean must also be submitted.

Advanced standing may be granted to students holding degrees from recognized colleges and universities for courses equivalent in content and method to the courses offered in this institution. However, no degree will be granted for less than one year resident work in courses pursued under the direction of the faculty of The School of The Political Sciences.

NATIONALITY IN THE UNITED STATES (2).

In this course will be noted the stages at which nationality had arrived prior to the arising of the United States. The prevailing types of nationalism and their influence upon the American founders will be considered. Contemporary European movements, particularly the political and industrial situation in England, will provide the setting for a study of the War of Independence, viewed as part of a wide nationalistic trend. The development of the national consciousness will be continued through the domestic experiences of the United States, its party history being followed out; as well as through its foreign contacts, particularly in the matter of its foreign wars. The course will close with the Civil War period and the forces for nationalistic concentration which sprang from it.

First and Second Semesters.

2 Periods per week.

CONTEMPORANEOUS NATIONALISM IN AMERICA (1).

With the full occupation by the United States of the domains added during the period of its territorial expansion and with its type of nationality fixed by the Civil War, a period of intensified nationality set in. The closer political and commercial intercourse of the United States with Europe and the East will be investigated as characteristic and as leading up to the mergence of the nation with its Allies in the issues of the World War. The course will conclude with a survey of the matters at stake in the contemporaneous contest between nationalism and the so-called internationalism, an effort being made to value the conservative approaches to a world view and the radical programs, from the point of view of their bearings upon the historical nationalism of the United States.

First and Second Semesters.

2 Periods per week.

CURRENT LEGISLATION.

Professor Rathbone.

The courses falling under the general head of current legislation are designed to cover this important field as applied to legislative procedure and the substance of legislation. The work is divided into three distinct sub-heads, dealing respectively with Current Legislation, Work of Legislative assemblies, and Parliamentary Law.

The general course in Current Legislation covers the various measures passed by the federal Congress and the legislatures of the several states and is given during the second semester of each year, one period weekly.

The course on Legislative Assemblies, which covers the fundamental principles of the work of legislative bodies and matters of procedure, is given during the first semester of the first year, one period a week in preparation for the course in Current Legislation.

The subject of Parliamentary Law is offered, also, during the first semester of the first year, one period a week, and covers the principles and methods of parliamentary law.

DIPLOMACY

ADMISSION.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

Admission to the school is open to three classes of students.

1. Men and women who are graduates of an approved college or university or who have received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from an approved Law School.

2. Men and women who have an equivalent of a Baccalaureate Degree or at least three years' college work, are eligible to the three-year course leading to the degree of Master of Diplomacy.

No student is considered a candidate for a degree until he has been in residence a sufficient time to enable his instructors to judge of his ability to do graduate work.

3. Persons not graduates of recognized colleges who wish to pursue graduate work not leading to a degree.

Students who are not candidates for a higher degree are not required to designate major or minor subjects but may elect their work with a view to a special purpose for which they are in attendance at the University. The courses announced for graduates are open for election by students not candidates for a degree upon the same general condition imposed upon candidates for a degree.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.

Students whose major work is in the field of Diplomacy may become candidates for the degrees of Master of Diplomacy, Master of Laws in Diplomacy, Doctor of Civil Law, Master of Arts or Doctor of Philosophy.

MASTER OF DIPLOMACY.

The degree of Master of Diplomacy will be granted upon the successful completion of three years of designated work, at least two years of which must be in addition to the requirements for a baccalaureate degree, and must submit a thesis upon a subject approved by the Dean.

COURSES IN ECONOMICS.

The courses in Economics offered by the American University are planned to train executives in the various fields of private business and public administration.

The study groups offered in this division are planned to meet the needs of several distinct groups of students. (1) College graduates who recognize the need for a scientific professional training in economics and business administration as a preparation for the management of a private business. (2) Men and women who expect to enter the practice of public accountancy. (3) Persons who wish to enter some branch of public service, such as membership on public commissions city manager, secretary of chambers of commerce, etc. (4) Persons who expect to enter the field of collegiate teaching.

ADMISSION.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

Admission is open to three classes of students.

1. Men and women who are graduates of an approved college or university or who have received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from an approved law school.

2. Men and women who have an equivalent of a baccalaureate degree or at least, three years college work are eligible to the three-year course leading to the degree of Master of Commercial Science.

No student is considered a candidate for a degree until he has been in residence a sufficient time to enable his instructors to judge of his ability to do graduate work.

3. Persons not graduates of recognized colleges who wish to pursue graduate work not leading to a degree.

Students who are not candidates for a higher degree are not required to designate major or minor subjects but may elect their work with a view to a special purpose for which they are in attendance at the University. The courses announced for graduates are open for election by students not candidates for a degree upon the same general condition imposed upon candidates for a degree.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.

Students whose major work is in the field of Economics or Business Administration may become candidates for the degrees of Master of Commercial Science, Master of Business Administration, Master of Arts, or Doctor of Philosophy, under the following conditions:

MASTER OF COMMERCIAL SCIENCE.

The degree of Master of Commercial Science, in economics or business administration, is granted upon the successful completion of three years' designated work in economics and related subjects, at least two years of which must be in addition to the requirements for a baccalaureate degree, together with the preparation of a thesis upon a subject approved by the Dean.

MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION.

The degree of Master of Business Administration is granted only to students who have received the A.B., B.S., or Ph.B., degrees from a recognized university or college of liberal arts, upon the completion of two years of work in the field of economics, and who prepare a satisfactory thesis upon a subject approved by the Dean.
